- Recently, Paxos was instructed to cease minting fresh BUSD by New York state officials. - All funds will continue to be stored at publicly verifiable locations. Binance introduced the "Secure Asset Fund for Users" (SAFU) on January 29, 2022; the SAFU is a $1 billion emergency insurance fund designed to protect Binance users in the case of a disaster. The SAFU fund's initial holdings included BNB, BUSD, and BTC. Binance has replaced BUSD in the fund with two other major stablecoins. Since Paxos was instructed to cease minting fresh BUSD by New York state officials. While looking for a replacement for BUSD, the Binance exchange settled on TrueUSD (TUSD) and Tether (USDT). This transfer will ensure that SAFU assets continue to protect customers even as the BUSD market value gradually decreases. Moreover, no action is required on the part of users. And all funds will continue to be stored at publicly verifiable locations, as per the official release. According to the report, Binance occasionally adds to the SAFU fund from its own resources to make sure it is sufficiently financed. Struggling BUSD Stablecoin Nevertheless, the dominant cryptocurrency exchange said unequivocally that they will maintain support for the BUSD trading pair. This is devastating news for Binance and BUSD investors since it demonstrates the widespread mistrust in the stablecoin. Having peaked at $15.5 billion in January 2023, the market valuation of the unstable stablecoin has steadily declined and is now just $8.2 billion. Moreover, according to the official blog article, Dogecoin (DOGE) is now one of Binance's verifiable assets. Binance's improved proof-of-reserves system now supports Dogecoin (DOGE) and 10 other cryptocurrencies, allowing its customers to independently verify their DOGE and other cryptocurrency holdings. - BUSD now ranks eleventh among all crypto assets behind Dogecoin. - Binance's reserve portfolio on February 25, 2023, showed $9.01 billion in BUSD. Almost $5 billion worth of BUSD stablecoins have been redeemed. Since Paxos stated on February 13, 2023, that it will no longer issue the dollar-pegged cryptocurrency BUSD. There were around 16.1 billion BUSD coins in circulation at the time of the announcement. But there are now only about 11,129,348,406 BUSD in circulation. Binance's reserve portfolio on February 25, 2023, showed $9.01 billion in BUSD. According to data compiled by coingecko.com, in a 24-hour period. Global BUSD transaction volume was roughly $6.84 billion, with Binance being the most active BUSD exchange. Maintains Parity With U.S Dollar Despite the redemption of 4.98 billion BUSD over the previous 12 days. The dollar-pegged cryptocurrency has maintained its parity with the U.S. dollar. Although the stablecoin tether (USDT) was used in the vast majority of BUSD deals on Saturday, the Turkish lira was nonetheless included in 2.80% of all BUSD trades. Moreover, now, BUSD represents 1.007 percent of the total value of the crypto market, which is estimated at $1.1 trillion. Throughout the previous 12 days, BUSD's supremacy has substantially dwindled, and as of this past weekend, it has been officially eliminated from the top 10 cryptocurrency rankings. Based on its current market capitalization, BUSD ranks eleventh among all crypto assets, behind Dogecoin (DOGE) and above-lido-staked ether (STETH). Furthermore, after the current crackdown by authorities, 97,858,390 #BUSD (97,868,345 USD) were destroyed at the Paxos Treasury, as reported by the crypto whale alert. Binance USD (BUSD) is a stablecoin with a market cap of $16 billion, and its creator, Paxos, destroyed about $700 million worth of tokens in the second week of this month. Recommended For You:

- According to Sandeep Nailwal Ethereum would surpass all other layer 1 competitors. - A network outage has happened to Polygon. Sandeep Nailwal, the co-founder of Polygon, discussed his forecast for the cryptocurrency environment in an interview. He anticipated that Ethereum would surpass all other layer 1 competitors to become the standard smart contract system. Sandeep Nailwal stated: I don't think there's going to be a multi-layer 2 environment. There'll be a layer 1 environment; there will be one single layer 1, which is Ethereum in my mind. He asserted that Solana, Aptos, Avalanche, and Cardano haven't yet shown substantial traction, nor have their respective layer 2s. With that, he declared that no other chain could compete with Ethereum. Nailwal believes that while all other rival layer-1s fail, Ethereum is going to be the dominant smart contract platform. Users will then gather to work on level 2 based on Ethereum from there. Polygon is a proof-of-stake (PoS) crypto network that hosts several decentralized finance (DeFi) and non-fungible token (NFT) projects. On Wednesday, the Polygon blockchain encountered difficulties with the network explorer PolygonScan, resulting in the blockchain not processing any transactions for a short period. Some users even speculated that the network was down.

- Bone ShibaSwap entered the top 100 cryptocurrency list. - BONE is the only token required for everything in the Shiba Inu ecosystem. While the Shiba Inu is all set to launch the much anticipated layer-2 blockchain "Shibarium", its utility token Bone ShibaSwap (BONE) surged over 21% in a week. Also, the price climbed by over 55% since the start of 2023 from $0.877655 to $1.96. BONE has a 24-hour trading volume of $ 34 million, which increased by 75%. The memecoin price spike may result from a recent tweet from Bone ShibaSwap's official Twitter account. That has posted a reminder post to the Shiba community and announced the rollout of the Shibarium beta launch date, which will take place next week. Further, the tweet emphasized the statement, "You will need Bone for everything in the Shib ecosystem". Also, earlier in January, the Shiba Inu team declared that the "BONE is and will be the only token required for gas charges and use when it comes to Shibarium". No Fixed Date for Shibarium Many rumors and speculations have been circulating on social media as the SHIB Army waits for the introduction of the L2 blockchain. Following that, the developer, Shytoshi Kusama starts releasing a series of medium blog posts about the L2 solution since the 15th of February. Although, the specific release date of Shibarium has not yet been confirmed by any of the officials than Bone. However, after the Layer 2 blockchain is released, the developers strive to ensure that BONE has a range of use cases in the ecosystem. But the Polygon Labs has reduced its workforce by 20%, citing the need to focus on core competencies across fewer business divisions as the reason for the layoffs. Over one hundred workers were affected; they would be offered three months' worth of severance as part of the turnaround plan. On the other hand, the crypto community has voiced worries about the company's treasury, which the firm has said stands at $250 million in addition to MATIC assets. After hearing about the layoffs at Polygon, the price of MATIC fell by as much as 6%. Industry-Wide Layoffs There has been a wave of layoffs in the cryptocurrency industry in recent months, with even major players like Coinbase cutting staff as the crypto winter has deepened. In light of the layoffs, several in the cryptocurrency world have questioned the team's spending habits. In a statement, Polygon's founders said that the company's financial situation was stable, but that the layoff decision was strategic. The group has said that consolidating under Polygon Labs would be a top priority in order to accelerate expansion. The report also revealed that they had holdings of over $1.9 billion in MATIC and over $250 million in other currencies. The crypto sector was curious about the company's $450 million funding round in early 2022. Polygon Labs' President Ryan Wyatt responded by saying most of the company's $200 million was invested in an ecosystem fund and ecosystem initiatives. Nevertheless, the coin recently achieved 10,000 holders which stands as a testament to the dedication of its community. Furthermore, also provide devotion to the crypto project. At its current $0.11756 support level, bulls have room to make an impressive surge upwards provided that there is sufficient momentum. However, they face resistance at $0.15815 which must be breached. This is in order for them to have more freedom of movement over the medium-long term timeframe. BABYDOGE The recently released Baby DogeCoin (BABYDOGE) token, which takes its theme from the popular Shiba Inu breed of dog, is a self-described deflationary token. The token has become one of the most socially active tokens in the market today. With a market capitalization of over $500 million, there is growing support among investors to see the token listed on Binance. At its current price of $3.1, bulls are rallying around the support level at $3.012. However, this could be seen as an indicator that BABYDOGE's future price movements may be bullish in nature. Investors should pay close attention to this key support level for BABYDOGE. Furthermore, it will play an important role in determining whether or not the token can continue to appreciate going forward. DOGE Dogecoin (DOGE) is often referred to as the "ancestor" of meme coins and has been gaining tremendous momentum in recent weeks. At the time of writing, DOGE is up by almost 8% in the weekly timeframe and trading at $0.0882 with support at $0.08585. Thus indicating a tight trading range that could be indicative of a larger bullish movement in the medium to long term. This suggests that both bulls and bears are actively engaged in a competitive tug-of-war. Above all with investors eagerly anticipate who will ultimately prevail. Floki Floki inu is one of the most widely-known Shiba Inu-themed tokens currently available. Boasting an impressive market capitalization of nearly $500 million. Floki's recent listing on several major exchanges such as KuCoin and OKX has created a stir among investors. However, it has pushed the token's trading volume to a staggering $200 million on the day of its listing. Furthermore, reports that Floki may soon be listed on Binance. However, this has further heightened investor interest and anticipation for what could be a potentially lucrative investment opportunity. The appeal of these coins is further enhanced by their high liquidity. Meaning that they can be easily exchanged for other cryptocurrencies or fiat money. As a result of this combination of features, traders are eagerly anticipating a rally in the prices of these meme coins this week.

- The green heatmap depicts the cryptocurrency gains in the last month. - Bitcoin (BTC) is in to and fro motion at the $25K level. After facing the two major collapses in the year 2022, many thought the crypto industry might not see the daylight ever again. But this present year 2023, gave a great start for the assets in blockchain technology. The cryptocurrency idols, Bitcoin (BTC) and Ethereum (ETH) are sailing in the better phases for the last two months. The above heatmap depicts the cryptocurrency gains in the last month. Apart from the stablecoins like Tether (USDT), USD Coin (USDC), and Binance USD (BUSD), other currencies have shown bullish movement. The increase is between 5 to 15%, but the point to note is the stability the tokens have maintained. Prices of Cryptocurrencies Bitcoin and Ethereum prices are key factors for determining the mood of the crypto market. When BTC and ETH have a decent trading price, the traders and investors have an optimistic approach. And to boost them, BIC is in to and fro motion at the $25K level. BTC witnessed this level previously in the month of June, last year. Similarly, ETH is trading at the $1.7K level, the seven days low is also $1,686. Other coins like Binance (BNB), Cardano (ADA), and Polygon (MATIC) have attained 4.25%, 9.51%, and 47.65% respectively, in the last 30 days. And the crypto community wishes this pattern to continue, with the upcoming queue of updates from leading platforms. Not to forget, the crazy hype of the cryptocurrency is lively because of the memecoins and their sincere advocates. And last week they set a remarkable target with their trend. Let it be the tweet made by Elon Musk or the expectation people had on Floki Burn Portal. The environment was busy with the discussion over these scenarios. Recommended For You

- The widget includes a pricing chart and a rapid conversion tool above search results. - Coins and tokens may be priced in various fiat currencies. Yandex, the most popular search engine in Russia, now offers its users data on more than 140 of the most widely used cryptocurrencies in addition to information on the currencies of dozens of other nations. The newest update to the business's currency converter now includes cryptocurrency rates, the company said. Russian news site Rb.ru cited Yandex's claim that the widget, which includes a pricing chart and a rapid conversion tool, may be found just above the search results. Standard keywords and even slang or imprecise language in the inquiry are both understood by the programme. Coins and tokens may be priced in various fiat currencies like Russian rubles, U.S. dollars, Euros, and more. The ability to see the value of a digital asset in a different cryptocurrency, as well as other currency pairings, are planned for the future. Similar Tool Launched by Twitter According to the report, one of the biggest aggregation platforms in the cryptocurrency field is Coingecko, where Yandex obtains its market statistics. Bitcoin, Ethereum, Litecoin, Dogecoin, and Solana have topped the list of most-searched cryptocurrencies on the Russian search engine so far in 2022, according to data from the search engine itself. Similar features are available on global web platforms, although some of these services are blocked in Russia. Twitter introduced a tool in December 2022 for keeping tabs on the value of various cryptocurrencies, however, access to the site is restricted in Russia, as reported by RBC Crypto. Even though Russia's "On Digital Financial Assets" legislation became effective in 2021, the country's central government has yet to implement regulations for decentralized cryptocurrencies like bitcoin. It has been stated by authorities that this will occur this year.

- Elon Musk said that they are working to let Twitter users make money off of their tweets. - The business will begin sharing a portion of its advertising income with creators. After his takeover of the social media company Twitter last year, Elon Musk implemented many of the promised reforms. Even Twitter's CEO, Elon Musk, has already said that individuals would have the option to monetize their tweets. At that time, Dogecoin saw a spectacular surge in value. On Saturday, one Twitter user announced that for the first time, the number of people who saw his tweets had surpassed 1 million. The catch? He has no idea how to make money off of it. There was a 102.8% increase to 1.37 million impressions via tweets. Billy "Shibetoshi Nakamoto" Markus, creator of the meme coin Dogecoin, asked to inform him even if he finds out a way to transform tweets into money. Advances Towards Creator Economy Elon Musk said that they are working on a solution to let Twitter users make money off of their tweets. Musk's response prompted more discussions, with several people offering their own suggestions for roundabout methods of making money. Nima Owji, a developer, recently shared that progress on Twitter's digital currency "Coins" is still being actively worked on. Twitter's developer edition has released a new version of its Coins announcement, including enhanced features and use. Tweets with high Twitter Coin counts are marked in some way to let others know how popular they are. As Twitter advances towards a "creator economy," CEO Elon Musk said on February 3 that the business will begin sharing a portion of its advertising income with creators. To do so, however, requires a subscription to Twitter Blue, which begins at $8 per month.

press time. But the token moved up to 96th rank on a particular day. $FLOKI is now officially in the Top 100 of all #cryptocurrencies according to top crypto tracker @CoinGecko alongside $DOGE and $SHIB. FLOKI (@RealFlokiInu) February 16, 2023 Visit our CoinGecko page here: <https://t.co/CAY14NXDRT> We're still waiting for @CoinMarketCap to fix our rank. We will share when they do! pic.twitter.com/GpqZyb0rx1 In the memecoin category, FLOKI is behind BABYDOGE. The first two places are held by DOGE and SHIB tokens. FLOKI has gained 65.3% price gain in the last 24 hours. The current trading price is $0.00005500. The market capitalization is above $537 billion. FLOKI's Rise The emergence of the token itself was kick-started by the "Doge father" Elon Musk on June 2021. Elon named his pet Shiba Inu dog "Floki", and there began the journey. The recent push for the token is also because of one of Elon's Tweets. Elon's pet is addressed as the new Twitter CEO, and the meme token took this chance to advertise themselves. FLOKI's reply to Elon's Tweet: "Full grown, amazing style, and ready to work as #CEO of #Twitter! @elonmusk raised a true #Viking that will take Twitter to the next level! *bork bork*" Apart from this, the ecosystem is all pipelined with updates and upgrades from the start of 2023. In Jan, the DAO proposed a proposal for the burning $100 million token, and it was also approved by the community. On Feb 15, the token was listed in the KuCoin exchange. And most recent update from the FLOKI team is about the Valhalla NFT Metaverse Game. Recommended For You

- Bitcoin (BTC) has made its way to $24,000 after 8 months. - One specific reason for the BTC hike is Ordinal NFT. Bitcoin (BTC), the genesis and leading asset in the cryptocurrency market has made its way to $24,000. The last record made on the $24k limit was on June 2022. And the whole crypto market takes it as an indication of the bull run. This price is also the new high in the present year 2023. BTC gained the spike, from $23k to $24k within a few hours. The percentage of the rise is 16.7% in a month, 7.7% in a week, and 11.8% in the last 24 hours. It is a known fact that BTC holds the maximum dominance in the crypto market. In the $1 trillion crypto market, BTC occupies 40.8%, in numbers, it takes over $476 billion. Bitcoin in Bull Run? Many reasons are pointed out for the surge in cryptocurrency prices. And one specific reason for the BTC hike is Ordinal NFT. The new method of NFT minting over the BTC blockchain has boosted the token. The impact is also noticed in the block size, blocks have made it into the 2.2 MB limit. Another reason is the trust people have cumulated in the BTC coin. With the SEC's impulsive actions over other cryptos and exchanges, BTC is taken to be the safer choice. As, the SEC chair, Gary believes Bitcoin is not a security. Ethereum, the second largest crypto is currently in a to-and-fro motion. The price is speculating day by day. Whereas, the memecoins are at their peak post the tweet from Elon Musk about the new Twitter CEO. The tweet has gathered the attention of some well-known meme cryptos like Dogecoin, Shiba Inu, and the FLOKI. Recommended For You

The launch date announcement of the new burn portal and 91% positive sentiment in CoinGecko are important stops. Around 48.2% of the total supply volume is burnt i.e, being sent to the null address by the Baby Doge community. This in turn will increase token value by decreasing the supply. At present, the value of coins being burnt equalizes approximately $344 million. This is all the result of the efforts put in by the community and the people who believe in the project. At the time, the infant doge ecosystem has 1.7 million followers on the micro-blogging site Twitter. The team also collaborates with exchange and crypto firms to conduct frequent giveaways and rewards to the followers. Other than these, $2 million worth of 6523 BNB got added to the BabyDoge liquidity pool. In the last 30 days, the token has moved 199.4% upwards and the current trading price is $0.000000002858. With its Burn portal live in less than 10 days, the Baby Doge is expected to attain even an ATH in price value. Recommended For You

- No more details beyond Musk's tweet announcing today's launch have been made public. - The 51-year-old business magnate broke the news of the new initiative himself. Twitter users who regularly provide content might now start to feel rewarded for their efforts. The new CEO of Twitter, Elon Musk, revealed on Friday that content producers would soon begin getting a cut of the income earned by advertising that appears in their reply threads. No more details beyond Musk's tweet announcing today's launch have been made public. And it's safe to assume that many of the inventors are now keeping their fingers crossed as they await word on the exact nature of their share. Following Other Popular Platforms Right now, YouTube pays out to creators at a rate of 55% of gross income, whereas TikTok shares revenues evenly with its artists. Furthermore, what this means is that content creators whose threads get the most advertising on their answers will have an even greater chance of earning a share of the ad money. Musk said that only Twitter Blue Tick members would be eligible for revenue sharing. Musk has been proposing new revenue-sharing arrangements for Twitter since the beginning of the year, but when and how these initiatives will be implemented remains unclear. In typical Musk fashion, the 51-year-old business magnate broke the news of the new initiative himself, far ahead of any official corporate announcement. Moreover, the CEO of Tesla has recently advocated for a "Twitter Payments" feature as a means to diversify the company's income away from advertising. While this functionality is still in the works, the social media business has already started applying for state licenses in the USA. The Dogecoin price has reacted positively to the news and is up 2% in the last 24 hours as per CMC at the time of writing.

- Verified users get 50% less ads than non-verified individuals on Twitter Blue as of now. - Analysts estimate that they will be anywhere between $15 and $16. Elon Musk, who purchased Twitter last year, said on Saturday that the microblogging service will soon begin offering a new, higher-cost, Blue membership that would do away with adverts. Though this feature has not yet been released. Verified users get 50% less ads than non-verified individuals on Twitter Blue, which costs $7.99 per month. The Dogecoin supporter may be responding to Blue's low subscriber numbers. And the previously stated 40% drop in ad income by offering a more premium subscription that does not contain commercials. Musk said Twitter is also developing a system to reduce the number and amount of ads users see on the platform. Focusing on Advertising Revenue Despite the fact that the billionaire has been mum on the subject of the new prices, analysts estimate that they will be anywhere between $15 and $16. Existing Blue subscribers enjoy perks including a more prominent 'verified' badge, the ability to delete tweets, the ability to upload 1080p videos, a reader mode for threads, and higher thread rankings. When you pay an extra $8, you have access to all of these options. Musk has been seeking to wean the platform's finances off on advertising revenue since he bought it in October. He plans to do this by using money from 'Twitter Blue' subscribers. Twitter is presently charging a $3 upcharge for Blue sign-ups made on iOS or Android devices to offset the 30% fee that Apple and Google earn from in-app purchases. Blue, which was relaunched in December, is now available as a monthly subscription on iOS for $11. Twitter released Blue for its Android platform on Thursday, at the same amount.

The cryptocurrency industry has emerged as a new financial investment opportunity for women across the globe. In recent times, women have been flocking to the crypto domain after realizing the numerous opportunities it offers. A new survey confirms this, revealing that cryptocurrencies are one of the most popular asset classes among women. According to a recent report from eToro, an Israel-based social trading and multi-asset investment firm, cryptocurrencies are the second most widely used asset type by women after fiat currencies. The survey was conducted among 10,000 global retail investors from 13 countries. Crypto Plays a Major Role in Women's Assets The findings of the study reveal that women are much more admired than men for owning crypto assets. The ownership of crypto has climbed from 29% in the third quarter of 2022 to 34% in the most recent quarter. The data also discloses that cryptocurrencies are succeeding where traditional financial markets have frequently fallen short by drawing in more female investors. In the fourth quarter of 2022, the adoption of cryptocurrencies among women surged notably. At the same time, crypto ownership among males only increased by 1% during the same period. Further, the percentage of global crypto investors has climbed from 36% to 39% from one quarter to the next. The survey also disclosed the reason behind the investors' entry into the cryptocurrency industry. According to 37% of those who responded to the study, the crypto sector is providing a huge opportunity to earn high returns. Also, 34% of them claimed that cryptocurrencies are a transformational asset class because they have high trust in blockchain technology. Furthermore, several statistics show that women from various countries have been drawn to cryptocurrencies in recent years because they have provided them with greater financial freedom. As a result, they took the initiative to buy crypto assets, particularly in the year 2022. Reportedly, Bitcoin (BTC), Dogecoin (DOGE), and Ethereum (ETH) are the most popular cryptos among women investors.

On Saturday afternoon, Solana's market value surpassed $9 billion, knocking Polygon MATIC off of the top 10 cryptocurrency markets for a short time. Since FTX sank, its price has also climbed. Solana gained 21% during the course of only one day last weekend. BONK, a Solana-based meme token, sparked a wave of excitement during the holidays and drove the price of SOL to a seven-day high just before the New Year. As with Dogecoin (DOGE) and the Ethereum-based currency Shiba Inu, coin collectors looked excited to welcome a fresh dog-themed entrance into the marketplace. According to CMC, BONK saw a staggering 3,300% increase in value in the first week of the year, however to $0.0000487. Despite a 69 percent price drop over the last week, BONK has a market valuation of $57 million.

- Addition of 30 more crypto tokens on the Search bar of Twitter. - Elon Musk's Favorite Dogecoin (DOGE) is also in the list. - Interesting features are upcoming to refine the user experience, Twitter. Twitter is a wide and a popular social media platform which connects people worldwide, especially crypto networks. After the purchase by Elon Musk, there were some interesting updates on Twitter. One among them is the price chart of cryptocurrencies on the search results. In order to enhance the user experience, this new feature has been implemented in Twitter. Last week of December 2022, Twitter announced that it has added a new service to the media platform. It displays the prices of crypto and stock in the search bar by simply typing the ticker symbol of the crypto with a dollar sign ($). Being in existence, the team has added another 30 more cryptocurrencies to this new social media giant's "Stocks" feature. Price Charts of 30 More Crypto Tokens Moreover, Twitter welcomed the price of Bitcoin (BTC) and Ethereum (ETH) to be a part of this exciting feature. Further, any tweets mentioning the symbol of a major stock, or cryptocurrency with $, will have a clickable link on it. Which will then direct the users to see the price chart of those crypto tokens or stocks. In light to this feature, the CEO of Twitter, Elon Musk tweeted saying, "Similarly, there are many product improvements upcoming to financial Twitter in the near future." Furthermore, the additional 30 crypto assets are the ones ranking in the top 50 by market capitalization at present. Some of them are, Tether (USDT), XRP (XRP), Binance USD (BUSD), Cardano (ADA), Solana (SOL), Polygon (MATIC), Litecoin (LTC), Dai (DAI), Avalanche (AVAX), Uniswap (UNI). And as a popular meme coin and user's favorite token, Dogecoin (DOGE) and Shiba Inu (SHIB) is also in the list. Following addition of Wrapped Bitcoin (WBTC), Ethereum Classic (ETC), Bitcoin Cash (BCH), Stellar (XLM), Internet Computer (ICP), The Sandbox (SAND) and Decentraland (MANA) is also in the list of 30.

- Shiba Inu is now the most actively traded token among the largest 100 holders of ETH. - SHIB burn rate skyrocketed 500% in the last 24 hours. The price of Shiba Inu Coin (SHIB) has risen the most among meme coins as investor opinion has shifted positively. In comparison to the roughly 20% increase in value shown by Dogecoin (DOGE) over the last week, the price of SHIB has risen by 23% over the past week. SHIB Army is aggressively burning additional SHIB tokens to increase the future Shiba Inu price. According to WhaleStats, the Shiba Inu Coin is now the most actively traded token among the largest 100 holders of Ethereum (ETH), surpassing Wrapped Bitcoin (WBTC) in the process. But Shiba Inu is also among the top 10 cryptocurrencies bought by the biggest ETH whales within the same time period. Community Efforts As we go further, we find that the Shiba Inu token is one of the top 10 tokens utilized by the top 100 whales in terms of trading volume. And yet these whales have $81 million worth of SHIB tokens in their possession. The community's proactive effort to remove Shiba Inu Coin from circulation has proven to be effective. It has been 24 hours since the SHIB burn rate skyrocketed 500%, according to statistics given by Shibburn. Around 11.8 million SHIB tokens have been burnt by SHIB Army to accomplish this. Developers of Shiba Inu have stated their desire to introduce the new metaverse during the South by Southwest (SXSW) conference in Austin, Texas in 2023. It will comprise a virtual reality (VR) tour of the WAGMI Temple, one of eleven venues in Shiba Inu's metaverse exhibiting the Dogecoin (DOGE) competition. Moreover, the newest improvements to the Shibarium Network have been revealed by the Shiba Inu team. Recommended For You:

- A subset of Twitter's user base is ecstatic about the upcoming changes. - Musk promised in November 2022 that users will be able to post lengthy tweets. Twitter CEO Elon Musk has announced significant upcoming modifications to the service's user interface (UI). New Twitter capabilities, many of which he revealed, will go out starting next week. Long-form tweets, a bookmark button, and fast swipe navigation between suggested and following content are just some of the new features. Through his Twitter account, the billionaire tech entrepreneur announced the initial part of a far broader UI redesign. In a tweet, Elon Musk detailed the impending modifications to Twitter's UI. Musk promised in November 2022 that users will be able to post lengthy messages. This would be tweets on the site (which currently have a character limit of 280). Musk has announced intentions to increase the character limit for tweets to 4,000. Which is more than 14 times the current maximum. Transition Into Financial Services A subset of Twitter's user base is ecstatic about the upcoming changes, arguing that they would improve the platform overall by reducing the number of times users have to compose many tweets in a single thread. Some Twitter users, however, are not pleased with the changes and worry that the trend toward longer messages may hurt the platform. Twitter reportedly submitted documents to US regulators in November 2022 in order to transition into the financial services industry. This was hailed as an important step toward Elon Musk's ultimate goal of transforming the social media firm into a "Super App." Additionally, he detailed his plans for implementing a Twitter-based payment system. Musk, a strong supporter of crypto and Dogecoin in specific will look towards capitalizing on the financial sector in the near future as per experts.

- Cardano (ADA) has increased by nearly 20.11% during the past 24 hours. - Cardano dApps completed 16 million transactions earlier this week. Cardano (ADA), the native cryptocurrency of the Cardano blockchain, is currently experiencing positive price momentum amid the market's surprising "green turn." At the time of writing, Cardano is trading around $0.3312 with a one-day trading volume of $840,247,007. ADA has increased by nearly 32.69% during the past 7 days. Cardano (ADA) Surges Up The price of Cardano has provided a very typical illustration of a consistent downward trend over the last few months. However, the ongoing uplift of the Cardano ecosystem has been attributed to several key factors, including user trust. Cardano dApps achieved a new milestone earlier this week by completing 16 million transactions. Further, ADA joined the top ten most used cryptocurrencies list for the first time in 2022, according to a recent survey. Moreover, as a result of the recent upward movement, Cardano's market cap increased to $10.2953 billion, or 1.23% of the entire market capitalization of cryptocurrencies. Cardano had a market cap of $94.8001 billion at its peak. However, Cardano is currently 89.30% down from its all-time high of $3.10, according to CMC. In addition, as the market is quickly gaining bullish momentum, the leading cryptocurrencies have experienced a considerable price increase. At the time of writing, Bitcoin (1.78%), Ethereum (3.83%), Binance Coin (7.06%), XRP (3.61%), Dogecoin (5.19%), Polygon (7.50%), and Solana (23.17%) have obtained a major price surge in the past 24 hours.

- Cuban expressed a desire for the price of Bitcoin to decrease. - Mark has long been an advocate of cryptocurrencies. Mark Cuban, a billionaire tech entrepreneur, is optimistic about Bitcoin and has even said he hopes the price keeps falling. During an interview on comedian Bill Maher's "Club Random" podcast, Cuban expressed a desire for the price of Bitcoin to decrease so that he could purchase more. The owner of the NBA's Dallas Mavericks has said that he does not see any value in investing in gold and that he would rather put his money into digital assets. Cuban, who has a net worth of $4.6 billion, has long been an advocate of cryptocurrencies like Bitcoin, Ethereum, and Dogecoin. Mark stated: "Gold is a store of value and so is Bitcoin. If everything went to hell in a hand basket and you had a gold bar you know what would happen? Someone would beat the fuck out of you or kill you and take your gold bar. It's useless." Bitcoin Prices Struggle The investor continued by saying that he much liked investing in Bitcoin since owning gold nowadays is merely owning a digital transaction. According to CMC, the current price of a bitcoin is $16,887, which is roughly 75% less than its all-time high of $69,044 reached last year. In terms of returns, gold and silver have been far safer bets in 2022. The price of gold has been stable at $1,800 per ounce from $1,807 a year ago. Since Bitcoin isn't backed by anything, according to Maher, it's not worth purchasing. Cuban said that investing in "90% of companies out there" was equally useless.

- Top cryptocurrencies attained a sudden surge during the past 24 hours. - DOGE has increased by nearly 6.58%, currently trading around $0.07816. The global cryptocurrency market is constantly maintaining a gloomy trend in recent days. Despite the current market conditions, the leading cryptocurrencies are experiencing an unstable price momentum, with their values fluctuating. However, the top coins have seen a slight increase in the last 24 hours. According to CoinMarketCap (CMC), the market's dominant cryptocurrency, Bitcoin (BTC) has plunged 0.04% in the last 24 hours. BTC is currently trading around $16,828.78 with a one-day trading volume of $16,836,833,600. At the same time, the major altcoins such as Ethereum (0.84%), XRP (2.15%), Cardano (2.58%), Polygon (1.53%), and Polkadot (1.66%) attained positive price actions during the day. Notably, Dogecoin (DOGE), the meme-based cryptocurrency has obtained a significant price increase (6.58%) in the volatile market. Dogecoin (DOGE) Surges Up After suffering from a significant loss earlier this week, Dogecoin's price suddenly climbed more than 6%. Elon Musk's favorite token is currently trending on the CoinMarketCap, ranking top on the CMC gainers list. At the time of writing, DOGE is currently trading around $0.07816 with a one-day trading volume of $672,728,385. In addition, Bitstamp, the major European crypto exchange, has recently announced the listing of Dogecoin on the platform. The exchange also revealed an exclusive offer, which allows its customers to buy and sell DOGE up to $1,000 with no transaction costs for 30 days. However, Shiba Inu (SHIB), another popular meme-based token has also attained a modest surge, registering 0.44% in the last 24 hours. And 94% utilize the apps through the android platform. Interestingly, a significant amount was invested during the Akshaya Tritiya, a day considered to be auspicious for dealing with wealth. Celebrities in the Field Looking at the zonal popularities, Delhi (7.87%) has the highest user population, the following positions are bagged by Bangalore (4.87%), and Hyderabad (3.27%). Apart from these metropolitan cities, Jaipur, Lucknow, and Pune have interesting data on users with very little marginal difference from the larger cities. Ashish Singhal, CEO of CoinSwitch stated: "2022 has had its share of economic, geopolitical, and market difficulties. It is important to understand how India's investors responded to the changed circumstances" The crypto audience in India has a good understanding of the market as panic selling figures are comparatively low. The crowd's focus was more on building a crypto profile and adding value to the existing profile with prominent crypto tokens. Indian crypto sector's trust in a project still remains a mystery as the investment in projects with higher utilities is very much similar to the ones in memecoins and popularity tokens. Bitcoin has the majority of traders (12.12%) and the Dogecoin investors stand next in numbers (11.54%). Exploration is also crucial, as around hundreds of cryptocurrencies were explored by Indian users. The timing of the report is also very similar, as the statement of the RBI governor is creating speculation in the Indian crypto atmosphere. Recommended For You

- OneCoin was first released in 2014 by Ruja Ignatova and Greenwood. - After being apprehended in Thailand in July 2018, Greenwood was eventually extradited. On Friday, the US Department of Justice (DOJ) stated that Karl Sebastian Greenwood, an associate of "Cryptoqueen" Ruja Ignatova and the co-founder of OneCoin, had pled guilty to federal counts of wire fraud and money laundering in connection with the OneCoin scandal. U.S. Attorney Damian Williams stated: "As a founder and leader of OneCoin, Karl Sebastian Greenwood operated one of the largest international fraud schemes ever perpetrated. Greenwood and his co-conspirators, including fugitive Ruja Ignatova, conned unsuspecting victims out of billions of dollars, claiming that OneCoin would be the "Bitcoin killer." In fact, OneCoins were entirely worthless." Crypto Queen Still Wanted OneCoin was first released in 2014 by Ruja Ignatova and Greenwood as a cryptocurrency that could be mined and sold over a worldwide multi-level marketing network. When members brought in new customers for "cryptocurrency" packages, they were rewarded monetarily. When it launched, OneCoin didn't have a blockchain, making it unable to mine like Bitcoin, Ethereum, and Dogecoin. After being apprehended in Thailand in July of 2018, Greenwood was eventually extradited to the United States in October of the same year. In 2017, Ignatova was last spotted boarding an airplane bound for Athens. There have been no sightings of Ignatova since October 2017, therefore the FBI put her on their Ten Most Wanted List in June of 2022. The agency claims that Greenwood was the "global master distributor" and head of the MLM network that promoted and sold the fake cryptocurrency. As reported by the Department of Justice, victims lost a total of over $4 billion due to their participation in the fraud.

- The Federal Reserve of the United States increased interest rates by 0.50 basis points. - Just like U.S. equities, the majority of the crypto market fell shortly after the news. The Federal Reserve authorized a lesser interest-rate boost than previous ones this year but indicated intentions to keep increasing rates next year to battle excessive inflation, sending the price of cryptocurrencies down along with U.S. markets. Inflation in the United States is at a 40-year high, therefore the Federal Reserve has raised interest rates by 0.75 percentage points four times this year. Aggressive Monetary Policy Anticipated The Federal Reserve of the United States increased interest rates by 0.50 basis points this time. This news reassured markets that the Fed may maintain its aggressive monetary policy in 2023, despite the lesser rate rise. A statement from the central bank stated: "The committee anticipates that ongoing increases in the target range will be appropriate in order to attain a stance of monetary policy that is sufficiently restrictive to return inflation to 2% over time." Bitcoin, the largest cryptocurrency by market cap, went to $17,649, a decrease of 3% in the hour after the news, according to statistics compiled by CMC. Since the collapse of the cryptocurrency exchange FTX on November 8, Bitcoin has been struggling to maintain a price of over $18,000. Those gains have been wiped out, but the price is still up over 3% from where it was a week ago. Just like U.S. equities, the majority of the cryptocurrency market fell shortly after the news. At the same time, Dogecoin's price fell 3.5%, while Ethereum's fell to $1,288, a loss of 3%. Risk assets, such as tech stocks or Bitcoin, tend to see more price fluctuations than safer investments like U.S. treasuries or dollars, which explains why digital assets tend to track U.S. equities so closely.

- Musk continues to halt Twitter scammers, and challenges Twitter bots to "attack" him. - Billy Markus claims only fewer bots appeared on a test post he recently tweeted. Elon Musk, the CEO of Twitter, is continuing to battle with spam bots. In his latest tweet thread, Musk openly challenged the Twitter bots to "attack" him, by adding two emoticons that portray bots and trolls on Twitter. However, the crypto communities on Twitter are reporting a dramatic decline in crypto bots using the platform. According to the communities, they are witnessing a sharp decrease in the number of bots responding to their tweets, following Elon Musk's action on scammers on Twitter. Crypto Spam Bots Vanish From Twitter In response to Musk's recent post regarding the Twitter bots, Billy Markus, the co-creator of Dogecoin (DOGE) claimed that he noticed only fewer bots appeared on a test post he had created. Billy Markus stated: i made a test post and instead of seeing 50 bot replies i only saw one, much progress, very hype. Also, PlanB, a Bitcoin analyst and investor, tweeted a chart to track the bots responding to the post. It shows that only a few bots have occurred in the comment section. Earlier, Vitalik Buterin, the co-founder of Ethereum came up with the need to fix the Twitter bot issue. Markus furtherly queried Musk on Sunday that "are the bots dead" and Musk responded, "Mostly." As a reaction to this, DOGE's co-creator posted a meme with the content "Burn Them All." However, Elon Musk has added that the spam bots will try other methods to appear and Twitter will eliminate them as soon as they arrive. Additionally, Twitter is also planning to take legal action against the scammers that will be "anywhere on Earth." Recommended For You

- Musk issued a stern warning against the release of confidential information. - The Tesla CEO allegedly gave Twitter staff till Saturday night at 5 pm to react to his email. According to reports, Elon Musk has taken a dramatic new step by threatening to sue Twitter workers who are engaged in leaking the company's secret information. He sent a warning email to the Twitter team advising them not to give out too much information to the press. Moreover, Musk wants his staff to sign a commitment indicating that they have read and fully understand the conditions of the agreement. He warned that doing so might constitute a flagrant breach of the NDA all Twitter workers are required to sign upon joining the company. Furthermore, the CEO of Tesla allegedly sent an email in which he discussed working against the interests of the firm. He said that several examples of sensitive Twitter data being leaked in great detail proved his point. Strict Regulations Invoked Journalist Zo Schiffer of Platformer claims that Musk issued a stern warning against the release of confidential information. Musk recently laid off hundreds of employees, prompting the warning. In addition, he instituted strict regulations concerning workers' output. Accordingly, Musk allegedly gave Twitter staff till Saturday night at 5 pm to react to his email. Recently, the billionaire claimed that the likelihood of recession would increase if the Fed were to raise interest rates at their next meeting. Moreover, On December 13th 2022, the Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) will convene for their next and last policy meeting of 2022. Musk's remark comes after he recently predicted that the slump might last until 2024. The Dogecoin supporter has been vocal about the recession on several occasions.

- Jim Cramer advised investors that they still have time to liquidate their crypto holdings. - XRP, ADA, Matic, and Doge are expected to decline much more, possibly to zero as per Cramer. Jim Cramer, head of CNBC's Mad Money, cautioned investors that they still had time to liquidate their cryptocurrency holdings. Cramer warned investors to liquidate their cryptocurrency holdings before it's too late since he anticipates a market collapse in 2023. He continued by saying that it's never too late to sell your cryptos and go while the prices are still high. Cramer added: You can't just beat yourself up and say, "hey, it's too late to sell." The truth is, it's never too late to sell an awful position. And that's what you have if you own these so-called digital assets. The names of popular cryptocurrencies that Cramer mentioned were there to imply that they might crash during the impending recession. He predicted that Ripple (XRP), Cardano (ADA), Polygon (Matic), and Dogecoin (Doge) would further decline and that they would eventually reach $0. Cramer on FTX &

SamBankman-Fried The CNBC host also discussed FTX and SamBankman-Fried (SBF), the company's co-founder and former CEO. The U.S. attorney doesn't care a whit about intent, Cramer insisted, only if you broke the law. "You were careless, you didn't keep records" unlawful "alright, so if you're admitting to illegality, even though you believe that you had no intent," Cramer emphasized. On November 11, FTX filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy, and Bankman-Fried resigned as CEO. Millions of investors and customers lost billions of dollars as a result of the exchange failure. The company is currently under investigation for improper handling of consumer money.

- Prior to this, Elon Musk had mentioned about accepting Dogecoin (DOGE) on Twitter. - After announcing, Jane Manchun Wong promptly cancelled her account. Monetization features, including a cryptocurrency called "Twitter Coin," are supposedly under development at Twitter. Nima Owji and Jane Manchun Wong, app researchers, tweeted about a secret "Coins" option in the app's "Tips" settings. Prior to this, Elon Musk had mentioned accepting Dogecoin (DOGE) on Twitter. Though, it's not clear whether the new coin will be based on Dogecoin or some other cryptocurrency. The announcement caused an almost six percent increase in the price of Dogecoin. In addition, Jane Manchun Wong included details on how to activate the functionality and verify the modifications. Even more perplexing is the fact that neither the code nor Musk himself explain what "Twitter Tips" or "Twitter Coin" are or how they link to DOGE, Musk's preferred meme currency. Mere Speculation? Elon Musk, Twitter's CEO, has said that the company is working on integrating support for both fiat and cryptocurrency payments. In addition, because Musk now controls the Twitter empire, he has often alluded to incorporating Dogecoin into the platform. Elon Musk has yet to confirm the "Twitter Coin" speculations, despite the fact that he is very active on the social media platform. And after tweeting about the 6% increase in value of Twitter Coin and DOGE, Jane Manchun Wong promptly cancelled her account. According to some, she is nowhere to be found on social media platforms like Discord, Instagram, Reddit, LinkedIn, Twitter, Facebook, etc. Elon Musk is attempting to restore access to some temporarily suspended Twitter accounts. In the last week, Musk has unbanned twelve Twitter accounts that regularly tweet about Dogecoin. A strong proponent of Dogecoin, he has often exclaimed "Dogecoin to the Moon."

Whereas, Ethereum (ETH) is now trading in the $2K price range. The meme coins are also not been spared during this crypto crash. Dogecoin (DOGE) and Shiba Inu (SHIB) have moved down one decimal value. The reason for the series of catastrophic events all over the year is many, starting off with the popular stablecoin crash, tightening of government regulations, environmental challenges for operation, and at times the technical drawbacks.

- Musk believes that Bitcoin will survive, but it may be a long winter. - Twitterâ€™s CEO predicted that DOGE would reach the Moon. Twitter CEO Elon Musk has stated that Bitcoin will recover, but it will take time because of the prolonged winter. The Tesla owner is very interested in cryptocurrency and has a lot of influence over the DOGE. In addition, despite the winter around the crypto industry and the collapse of the FTX, Musk believes that Bitcoin, Ethereum, and Dogecoin have a future. Muskâ€™s Prediction On The Future of Cryptocurrency Musk spoke on the future of Bitcoin in response to a Twitter userâ€™s conversation about the price of bitcoin, which is currently trading at the $16k level after falling to $69k a year ago. BTC will make it, but might be a long winter â€” Elon Musk (@elonmusk) November 14, 2022 As a consequence of Muskâ€™s comment, the price has risen to $16,980, having previously been at $17,000 and now trading at $16,767, an increase of 4.88% at the time of writing. As previously said, he owns some bitcoins, as do Tesla and SpaceX. And, according to Teslaâ€™s most recent SEC filings, the firm has $218 million in digital assets and has sold 75% of its BTC holdings. As a DOGE enthusiast, Musk replied on Saturday on Twitter with a bullish statement that DOGE to the Moon. Musk has long been a proponent of the meme cryptocurrency; the DOGE community refers to him as the Dogefather. The billionaire recently stated that he owns some dogecoins and intends to continue acquiring and backing the joke cryptocurrency. He feels dogecoin has monetary potential. And he wants to integrate DOGE payments into the Twitter platform since his support causes DOGEâ€™s price to rise, and at the time of writing it is trading at $0.08627, up to 6.30%. In addition, he said on Twitter that on Saturday I believe Bitcoin, Ethereum, and Dogecoin have a future. I canâ€™t address the others. But if you have one of those three in a cold wallet and off an exchange, I believe it will work out fine.

- Nansenâ€™s analysis shows that Crypto.com has assets worth nearly $3 billion. - FTX collapse compels every company to prioritize transparency. A pioneer was Crypto.com. As crypto.com transitions to Proof Of Reserve, the development occurs, and the preliminary audit shows that Shiba Inu owns 20% of the assets. As the FTX collapse forces every firm to focus on transparency. The majority of firms are shifting to make the firm transparent. As a result, Crypto.com was a forerunner. As it has now been revealed, they have a wealth of assets in a well-known meme-coin. JUST IN: #CryptoCom CEO and founder @kris just released their "Proof of Reserve". The scary partyâ€¦ they hold more $SHIB than $ETH. pic.twitter.com/XmMOxFzKYR â€” Mr. Whale ðŸŒŒ whalechart.org (@WhaleChart) November 11, 2022 With those efforts just getting going, one company, Crypto.com, has taken the proactive step of sharing wallet addresses with the blockchain analysis firm Nansen. To create a dashboard of nearly $3 billion in reserves and other assets. Crypto.com Preliminary Audit Reveals Plenty of SHIB The audit reveals that the meme coin Shiba Inu handles a sizable portion of Crypto.comâ€™s assets. Because the majority of the SHIB token is a frequently abused cryptocurrency with primary use cases, it is frequently regarded as speculation it is traded for quick profits and cheap. And, of the $2.88 billion in total assets, approximately $588 million are in SHIB. With the holding ranking second only to the $872 million in bitcoin (BTC), the largest cryptocurrency by market value, which accounts for 31%. According to Nansen data, the amount exceeds $487 million in ether (ETH). The second-largest cryptocurrency, and midgets the $1.5 million in dogecoin (DOGE). Crypto.com spokesman said to a media outlet that â€”Shiba is included in our Proof of Reserves because we hold customersâ€™ balances 1:1. As a result, our Proof of Reserves is determined by our customersâ€™ holdings.â€” Itâ€™s not surprising, he says, that retail-heavy exchanges will have a higher concentration of such tokens. Regardless, as an exchange, oneâ€™s main source of revenue is likely to be trading fees, so whether trading meme coins or more fundamentally sound assets, the business model persists.

- From FTX alone 800 million SHIB was transferred with just three transactions. - The total amount of SHIB burned in the last 24 hrs reached nearly 12 billion. Shiba Inu (SHIB), the meme token with a Japanese guard dog representation has become the talk of the town again. The dogecoin killer coin was one among the many other altcoins that suffered due to the fall of FTX.com. A few days back, whales shifted off nearly 1.5 trillion SHIB from different exchanges. From FTX alone 800 million SHIB was transferred with just three transactions containing huge lumps of Shiba Inu. As of Coinbase, 183 billion SHIB was sent to an unknown wallet. Additionally, 108 million SHIB was transferred from one anon wallet to another. SHIB overtook Solana (SOL) in the market capitalization rank, but it was not long-lasting as SHIB drifted from its long-held $0.00001 value. Currently, the value of the token is $0.000009751, and the trading volume in the past 24 hrs is $301 million, as per CMC data. Optimistic Shiba Inu Community Though the crypto market situation is not very favorable for the SHIB, the community still holds on. They are very confident about the bounce back from the FTX crash. Shiba Inuâ€™s technical team is also expanding the origin. SHIBBURN is prominent among the SHIB members, as itâ€™s their go-to solution for maintaining the tokenâ€™s balance. In the last 24 hrs, the total amount of SHIB burned reached nearly 12 billion. In the past 24 hours, there have been a total of 11,999,999 $SHIB tokens burned and 2 transactions. The Shibarium layer two blockchain is under development for over a year, Shytoshi Kusama has also hinted at its launch by the start of this month.

- Twitter announces plans for new payments. - Necessary paper works filed for the new payment means. - Entire crypto industry anticipates the arrival of crypto payment terms for Twitter. Though a big hot flash news, yet not a one to be surprised of, is what comes into mind when Elon Musk is behind the wheels as the driver. Ofcourse, the news leaks obviously took both the social media platform Twitter, and the crypto industry sky rocketing up with the new payment means. In spite of the current news on trend now, Twitter has completed all the official paper works for new payment means. This new filing could be none other than the crypto means of payment itself. Twitter's Appraisal or Elon Musk's Business The moment Elon Musk acquired Twitter, indeed changed the face of everything, including the entire crypto industry too. On one hand there are cryptos, exchanges, and all other sorts of crypto firms solely counting on Twitter for most of their promotions, and upbringing to the masses on an official means, being the sole official media platform. However, it's the same for the Twitter media platform itself, as it has faced numerous outbreaks with news of employee reduction, and much more revolving around it constantly ever since Elon Musk acquired it. In such a stake, now unofficially Elon Musk has taken control over in fact everything is what anyone would say, as he has the most powerful media platform in his hands. Likewise, Elon's announcements of a new brand flash news everyday, like that of getting a verified account for just a mere $8 is indeed a true business strategy. With the onset of such an announcement, news surfaces of Twitter's filings for new payment means, which could be none other than crypto. Thereby, such a skillful move by creating two businesses out of a single idea, is what Elon Musk has done. Many took over by storm stating that Dogecoin (DOGE) would be very well the first of in list among Twitter payments. Evidently, the history of DOGE, and Elon speaks for itself. And so, Elon is all set to make even more billions with the new blue tick verified Twitter option selling for $8, followed by getting all the payments done through crypto!

- The total Solana liquidated recorded $12.45 million in the last 24 hours. - Solana (SOL) is down by 93% from its all-time high. The current scandal over Sam Bankman Fried's crypto exchange FTX and his trading company Alameda Research resulted in a significant loss on Solana's SOL token. The worst-case scenario is SBF's Alameda Research holding a significant amount of Solana tokens. The so-called Ethereum killer Solana (SOL) which supports the rapid layer-1 blockchain has fallen to double digits despite the news that Google Cloud would run a Solana validator SOL decreased from $36.29 to $31.02 in the early hours of Monday. At the time of writing, Solana traded at $16.80 declined by more than 40% in the last 24 hours, as per Coingecko. Also, Solana's market cap shrunk by over 38% in the past day. As a result of today's bearish price movement led by Sam Bankman-Fried's FTX insolvency, Solana lost all of its weekly gains, falling around 47% for the week. And SOL was down by approximately 48% in the preceding month. In addition, Solana is still down by 93% from its all-time high of $259.96 which has recorded on November 2021. Further, Solana liquidated around $12.45 million in the last 24 hours. Bear Runs in the Crypto Market The month of November started with some positive movement and the global crypto market cap recaptured the $1 trillion range. But today the overall cryptocurrency market cap decreased by 10% to $878 billion. The largest cryptocurrency, Bitcoin (BTC) down by 10% to $17,838. Also, the prominent altcoin Ethereum (ETH) shrunk by around 17% to $1,231 in the last 24 hours. Additionally, Dogecoin (DOGE) which has been the most talkative coin in the crypto community dropped by 13%, and Polygon (MATIC) declined by 18%.

- Dogecoin (DOGE) gained more than 98% in the previous month. - Polygon becomes Meta's first partner for its new NFT feature. After six months of a downtrend, currently, the global crypto market recapturing its value and signaling a bullish momentum with new developments. At the time of writing, the overall cryptocurrency market cap is $1.1 trillion, up by 3.4% in the last 24 hours. Let's look at the top 3 cryptocurrencies that are trending in the crypto community. Dogecoin (DOGE) Since Tesla CEO Elon Musk completed the Twitter deal, Dogecoin (DOGE) being the most talkative meme coin in the crypto community. Elon Musk is a longtime fan of DOGE and his actions would appear to boost it. Even DOGE has flipped Cardano recently to rank as the sixth-largest cryptocurrency by market cap. In the last week, Elon has dropped hints that #Dogecoin will be the monetary base layer for Twitter "ðŸŸ‘, ðŸŸ‘, ðŸŸ‘, (@itsALLrisky) November 3, 2022 And Twitter is going to be the "everything app" The world will run on $DOGE However, Dogecoin soars up by 98% in the preceding month and traded at $0.127776 with a market cap of $17 billion. Also, according to Coingecko, DOGE has increased by over 115% in the last 14 days, and around 52% in a week. Polygon (MATIC) Result of several strategic alliances and integrations, Polygon (MATIC) rallied by more than 43% in the last 14 days. Most recently, Meta announced that it let users mint and sell non-fungible tokens (NFT) or digital collectibles by Polygon blockchain. Polygon is trending following Meta's framework release announcement and becoming the first partner of Meta's new feature. Polygon partnerships this year: Starbucks, Meta, Reddit, DraftKings, Disney, Adidas, NFL, Adobe and now JPMC. æ” himishg.eth (@nimish_gahlot) November 4, 2022 It's unreal! But when you look under the hood. All of it makes sense ðŸšš (1/9) pic.twitter.com/Vs6z608zuM Further, earlier in the morning, MATIC traded at $1.27, the highest price in six months. Also, the Polygon gained over 40% in the previous month and around 30% in the past 7 days. Currently, MATIC traded at $1.20 with a market cap of $410 billion. Gala (GALA) A blockchain gaming ecosystem Gala is trending following the false statement of a multibillion-dollar hack or rug pull on November 3. Late on Thursday, the GALA token briefly fell by around 25% due to an unfounded scam. Later the blockchain company claimed that the GALA bridge was safe. $GALA was NOT hacked. However this was caused by a misconfigured bridge by @pNetworkDeFi. This misconfiguration led to pGALA being compromised. æ” megbzk (@megbzk) November 4, 2022 Once again, this has NOTHING to do with the ERC 20 $GALA token. @BitBenderBrink @GoGalaGames However, according to Coingecko, Gala (GALA) traded at $0.04282151 with an increase of approximately 23% in the last 24 hours. In addition, GALA surged by 30% in the previous 14 days and 21% in the preceding 7 days.

- Unique Active Wallets in DeFi increased by 7% (504K) from September. - NFT trading volume reached $662 million, down 30% from September. The world's largest marketplace for decentralized applications, DappRadar, revealed in its most recent report that the cryptocurrency market is growing and recovering with a market valuation of more than $1 trillion. Also, Unique Active Wallets (UAW) for blockchain dapps reached 2.01 million on average per day in October which is up 6.84% since September. And DeFi increased by 7% (504K) from September and exceeded half a million UAW for the first time since June. But, the number of UAW in the blockchain gaming industry fell by 2% (898K) from the previous month, and its market share also declined, falling to 45%. The Sign of Market Recovery As bears eventually stepped aside, the global crypto market cap finally crosses the $1 trillion threshold and Bitcoin (BTC) and Ether (ETH) witnessed daily increases, as per the DappRadar research. Through October, altcoins also fared well. Elon Musk's purchase of Twitter and Dogecoin's release of its future roadmap led Dogecoin (DOGE) to reach a 50% increase over the previous 30 days and six-month highs. Further, the total value locked in DeFi platforms (TVL) climbed this month by 5.33% to reach $83 billion, demonstrating further signs of recovery. Ethereum is still the most widely used chain with $51 billion TVL, which increased by 9.52% from September. However, the NFT trading volume reached $662 million, the lowest level DappRadar has seen this year, down 30% from September and the sales count also dropped by 30%. The NFT trading volume for Ethereum reached the lowest level since June 2021 to $324 million in October, a fall of 21%. Solana's trading volume dropped by 49% ($66M). When compared to August OpenSea's market share shrank by 8.3% in October, and its monthly NFT trading volume fell by 12.1% ($313 million).

First-of-its-kind automated platform provides live crypto trading aimed at retail investors LOS ANGELES (BUSINESS WIRE) - InvestWithPluto - Pluto, a free trading platform offering easy to use tools for building automated, data-driven investing strategies, officially launched its application with live crypto trading Thursday. Pluto's proprietary no-code interface is both easy to use and performance augmenting, making it accessible to investors of all ability levels. Pluto enables investors to construct custom, automated trading strategies based on their investing preferences with out-of-the box tools. Pluto's tools seek and exploit favorable market conditions while shielding investors' portfolios from risk. Additionally, Pluto will give users the ability to license their strategies to other members of the Pluto community, thereby giving retail investors the ability to monetize their knowledge. Investors will now be able to live trade bitcoin, ethereum, polygon, dogecoin and a number of other popular cryptocurrencies. Joining the platform also entitles users to partake in Pluto's rewards programs, which include: - Community Rewards - an industry-first dividend program that allocates a portion of Pluto's profits back to its investor community. - Sparks - an initiative that rewards users for completing education missions designed to help them understand and apply systems of wealth creation used by professional traders and institutions. “We wanted to design an accessible platform available to people of all experience levels,” said Pluto CEO Jacob Sansbury. “For too long, hedge funds and big banks have monopolized superior trading technology, entrenching their positions at the top of the financial food chain. At Pluto, we believe Wall Street MBAs and dorm room traders deserve access to the same investing tools.” Live trading on Pluto offers some of the lowest crypto trading fees in the industry, saving investors upward of 90% in fees compared to many of the biggest exchanges and trading platforms on the market. Currently, the majority of crypto test strategies built on Pluto reflect a positive net return, validating Pluto’s mission to empower every retail investor with healthy and productive investing habits and personalized, yet accessible, trading tools. Crypto trading is just the start of Pluto’s journey – in the coming months, the platform will add stock trading features and more, with the goal of eventually becoming a hub for multi-asset trading. About Pluto Pluto is a free-to-use platform for building, utilizing, and monetizing automated trading strategies for digital asset and equity markets. Launched in 2021 by Bridgewater Associates alum Jacob Sansbury and cybersecurity enthusiast Dakota McDaniels, Pluto is facilitating the next generation of quantitative retail investing. Pluto’s automated trading toolkit enables users to build no-code strategies to augment their investing capabilities, while Pluto’s trading strategy marketplace enables users to license highly-vetted trading strategies from other users. Pluto is backed by At.inc, Switch Ventures, and Caffeinated Capital and is based out of Los Angeles. Contacts Will Crockett pluto@wachsman.com

- A new whale purchased 3.37 trillion SHIB tokens for $37.46 million. - According to the Shibburn website, Shiba Inu burn rates have gone up by 443%. Shiba Inu’s enormous price spike over the previous week has propelled it into Robinhood’s top five most profitable cryptocurrencies this week. Since the beginning of the week, Shiba Inu has increased in value by 18%, making it the fourth most profitable cryptocurrency on Robinhood. Among other cryptocurrencies in the list cryptocurrencies, SHIB was following Avalanche (AVAX), Ethereum (ETH), and Dogecoin (DOGE). This was announced by Robinhood in a tweet that also addressed recent developments in the crypto market. Shiba Inu has gained 17.3 percent in the last week and is now trading at $0.00001168. With the market calmness of late, the crypto asset rose, making investors happy. Whales Backing SHIB The fact should be noted that Shiba Inu has had a string of good luck occurrences this week. Shiba Inu trading is now open to users in the United States, as reported by the Bitstamp exchange. The price of Shiba Inu’s looks bullish and might rally in the upcoming weeks, and it seems that whales are backing up this. A week before the price increase, these whales bought a lot of SHIB. It was revealed two days ago that a new whale purchased 3.37 trillion SHIB tokens for $37.46 million. A second unidentified whale also made a record-breaking purchase of Shiba Inu on the same day, for a total of 3.94 trillion Shiba Inu tokens, worth approx. $42.9 million. A preexisting Shiba Inu whale also invested $1.92 million (165 billion SHIB units) to join the herd. According to the Shibburn website, Shiba Inu burn rates have gone up by 443%. Only 14,089,818 SHIB, however, were burnt throughout the course of the previous day. Recommended For You:

At the time, the exchange’s CEO called the action a small contribution to the cause. Twitter to Ensure the Future of Civilization According to some sources, Morgan Stanley, Bank of America, and Barclays were the main lenders who assisted the Tesla and SpaceX CEO in funding the transaction, each pledging at least $2.5 billion in debt financing. Before partnering on Twitter’s acquisition, Musk and CZ had a brief dispute on the platform last year, when Musk urged Binance to address Dogecoin withdrawal concerns. Musk reportedly sealed the deal to acquire Twitter for $44 billion late on Thursday, after months of legal and public wrangling over the matter. Before closing the acquisition, Musk indicated that he was owning Twitter primarily to secure the future of civilization. As one of his first moves, the new owner sacked the company’s top executives. As part of the agreement, Musk will take the company private, removing its stock from the public market. Recommended For You :

- Dogechain (DC) is 24.5% up in the last 24 hours, now trading around $0.00285350. - The Dogechain community took an initiative, “The Great Burn” community vote from October 23 to 28. Dogechain (DC), the governance token of the Proof-of-Stake (PoS) based Dogechain ecosystem, is witnessing a dramatic price surge during the past few days. The meme-based coin, DC, has increased by approximately 452.0% in the week, as per CoinGecko. During the period of the market downtrend, Dogechain struggled to survive in the global cryptocurrency market. The token hit its all-time low in the last week, registered at $0.00035975 on October 21. However, with the tremendous price up, Dogechain is currently on pace to achieve its all-time high of $0.00462755. At the time of writing, Dogechain (DC) is trading around $0.00285350 with a one-day trading volume of $33,156,383. The token has increased by nearly 24.5% during the last 24 hours. A Proposal To Burn DC Supply The Dogechain developers have recently recommended a dramatic reduction in the supply of digital assets. Following this, the Dogechain community embraced the developer’s proposal and took an initiative, “The Great Burn” community vote from October 23 to 28. According to the Dogechain community, the proposal determines whether the total supply of $DC tokens should be cut by 80% proportionally across all allocations and whether the vesting duration of the remaining Early Shibes airdrop should be reduced from 48 to 6 months. Following the closing of voting, the DC community tweeted: Thank you for voting Shibes, the community locked more than 560 million $DC votes locked, passing the vote threshold! With a landslide victory FOR (99.9% YES), the #Dogechain foundation will burn 80% of the total unreleased supply of tokens. Dogechain, a smart contract platform built on Polygon Edge, made its debut on August 23. Initially, it was intended for users to stake $wDOGE to gain $DC, but this plan was dropped when it was determined that this would stifle natural chain activity and only benefit the largest holders. Interestingly, DC has increased by nearly 462.9% in the last two weeks and 279.0% up in the last 30 days. Recommended For You

Elon Musk has concluded the $44 billion Twitter acquisition deal, becoming the new owner of Twitter, Inc. After months of legal disputes, the multibillionaire has added the social media giants to his empire. Following the takeover deal, Musk has reportedly terminated several top Twitter representatives. The sources reveal that he fired Parag Agrawal (CEO), Ned Segal (CFO), Vijaya Gadde (head of legal policy, trust & safety), and Sean Edgett (general counsel). However, Twitter executives have not yet responded to the latest disclosures. As per reports, Musk recently informed the potential investors in his purchase of Twitter that he plans to fire nearly 75% of the 7,500 employees. From "Perfume Salesman" to "Chief Twit" On Thursday, the Tesla CEO appeared at the Twitter headquarters with a sink and tweeted "Entering Twitter HQ" let that sink in!. Later, Musk stated in a message to advertisers on Twitter that he was acquiring Twitter. Musk added: The reason I acquired Twitter is because it is important to the future of civilization to have a common digital town square, where a wide range of beliefs can be debated in a healthy manner, without resorting to violence. He claimed that Twitter must be "warm and welcoming to all" and added that the platform allows users to "choose your desired experience according to your preferences, just as you can choose, for example, to see movies or play video games ranging from all ages to mature." The billionaire also shared a photo of himself interacting at the Twitter headquarters' coffee bar. At the same time, the "Burnt Hair Perfume Salesman" updated his Twitter bio as "Chief Twit." The battle between Elon Musk and Twitter has already gained widespread attention globally. Musk initially planned to buy Twitter, but then altered his mind, claiming that the social media company had provided incorrect information regarding spam bots. Twitter breached its contractual commitments after he backed away from the initiative. However, Musk changed his mind again and stated that he would buy Twitter for the agreed-upon price of $54.20 per share. Recommended For You

After a period of decline, the crypto market as a whole is on the mend, and this has been reflected in the price of even the most popular meme coin, such as Dogecoin and Shiba Inu. Moreover, whale transaction trackers have seen a significant increase in Shiba Inu purchases by crypto whales during the previous day. A crypto whale reportedly transferred 3.36 trillion Shiba Inu to an anonymous wallet, as reported by Whale Alert. The approximate value of the transferred SHIB tokens is $35.77M. The previous 24 hours' greatest transaction amounts to this. Highly Anticipated SHIB: The Metaverse Though in the past day, the price of a Shiba Inu has increased by more than five percent. As of this writing, the going rate for SHIB is around $0.000010. Despite the heightened volatility, Shiba Inu's market worth remains over $5.7 billion. The total amount of funds exchanged in a day has increased by 215% to $344.4 million. Due to SHIB's recent metaverse-wide statement, a massive whale migration has been documented. It was said that SHIB: The Metaverse will evolve into a diverse community. There was previously an announcement of a collaboration with THE THIRD FLOOR (TTF). Even while Shiba Inu is still one of Ethereum's top 100 "whales" it's $127.9 million in holdings is now much less than it was. It represents 4.84 percent of the whole whales investment portfolio. Despite the uncertainty in the cryptocurrency market, investors seem to be keeping their Shiba Inu tokens. For the last day, the SHIB token's Burn rate has decreased by a whopping 100 percent. Over the previous day, just 732k SHIB coins have been delivered to a dormant wallet. Recommended For You:

Collectibles Marketplace Panini America Will Be Among the First Merchants to Support Its Customers

with the New MATIC Payment Option ATLANTA (BUSINESS WIRE) BitPay, the world's largest provider of Bitcoin and cryptocurrency payment services, has announced support for Polygon and MATIC. Consumers can buy, store, swap and spend MATIC within the BitPay app later this week. For the first time, BitPay app holders will have access to spend other ERC-20 tokens including USDC, DAI, ETH and WBTC on the Polygon Network. BitPay merchants will be able to accept Polygon payments from the most popular Polygon wallets. As the first merchant to accept MATIC through BitPay, Panini America is supporting its customers with a new digital payment option. Panini is the International brand leader within the world of sticker and trading card collectibles with over 1,000 collection launches each year and one of the leading publishers of children magazines and books, comics, manga and graphic novels. Users have access to thousands of NBA, NHL, NFL and more NFTs through Panini's NFT marketplace. "We're really excited to be able to support another coin within the Panini Wallet, especially one so connected with the NFT market. The opportunity to partner closely with BitPay, continue to develop the Panini NFT platform, and continue to give our collectors greater payment flexibility and options during this NFT market cycle is a key reason we've chosen to work so closely with BitPay," said Jason Howarth, VP Marketing, Panini America. The Polygon frictionless and carbon-neutral Layer-2 Ethereum scaling platform offers a fast, scalable, and ultra-low fee environment for web3 users and builders alike. Its native token, MATIC, is used for blockchain governance, paying transaction fees, and participating in decentralized apps (dapps). The network is fast becoming the de facto platform for Web3, working with major brands and corporations such as DraftKings, Meta, Starbucks, Reddit, and Stripe, among others, and boasting over 37,000 dapps. "When adding a new coin for merchants to accept, we look at many factors, but among the most important is its payment utility and community involvement. The Polygon network encourages mass adoption by enabling blockchain networks to connect and scale to support new and existing users," said Stephen Pair, CEO of BitPay. "Adding MATIC to the mix of cryptos that BitPay supports offers businesses a fast, safe and secure alternative to traditional payment methods and paves the way for blockchain payments to disrupt the way consumers and businesses receive and spend funds." "Working with BitPay opens up a new world of commerce to MATIC holders, allowing them to spend with a host of global merchants including Airbnb and Shopify for the first time," said Sandeep Nailwal, Co-Founder of Polygon. "We're thrilled the utility of MATIC is expanding and adding further value to the Polygon ecosystem." The update to BitPay merchants and BitPay app holders is automatic to add MATIC to the mix of cryptocurrencies. Merchants do not need to make any changes or adjustments in order to accept Polygon payments. Customers have the option to make payments from the BitPay Wallet and other supported wallets. In addition to Polygon (MATIC), BitPay supports 15 other cryptocurrencies including Ape Coin (APE), Bitcoin (BTC), Ethereum (ETH), Bitcoin Cash (BCH), Dogecoin (DOGE), Shiba Inu (SHIB), Litecoin (LTC), XRP (XRP), Wrapped Bitcoin (WBTC), as well as six stable coins Euro Coin (EUROC), Dai (DAI), Binance USD (BUSD), USD Coin (USDC), Pax Dollar (USDP) and Gemini Dollar (GUSD). About BitPay Founded in 2011, BitPay is one of the oldest cryptocurrency companies. As a pioneer in blockchain payment processing, the company's mission is to transform how businesses and people send, receive, and store money. Its business solutions eliminate fraud chargebacks, reduce the cost of payment processing, and enable borderless payments in cryptocurrency, among other services. BitPay offers consumers a complete digital asset management solution that includes the BitPay Wallet and BitPay Card, enabling them to turn digital assets into dollars for spending at tens of thousands of businesses. The company has offices in North America, Europe, and South America and has raised more than $70 million in funding from leading investment firms including Founders Fund, Index Ventures, Virgin Group, and Aquiline Technology Growth. For more information visit bitpay.com. About Polygon Polygon Technology is the leading blockchain development platform, offering scalable, affordable, secure and sustainable blockchains for Web3. Its growing suite of products offers developers easy access to major scaling solutions including L2 (ZK Rollups and Optimistic Rollups), sidechains, hybrid, stand-alone and enterprise chains, and data availability. Polygon's scaling solutions have seen widespread adoption with 37,000+ decentralized applications hosted, 2.1B+ total transactions processed, 174.9M+ unique user addresses, and $5B+ in assets secured. The network is home for some of the biggest Web3 projects such as Aave, Uniswap, OpenSea and well-known enterprises including Meta, Stripe and Adobe. - BabyDoge price surged by more than 4% and traded at $0.000000001232. - Further, Doge (DOGE) soars up by over 10% in the last 24 hours. The new week starts with the spark and excitement of cryptocurrency market participants. As a result, top crypto tokens were all trading in greens. In the last 24 hours, the total volume of the global cryptocurrency market surged by over 122% to $144 billion. In addition, all four leading meme coins were trading in green. However, despite the stable price movement, the BabyDoge coin community has been noted. BabyDoge price surged by over 4% and the top 100 BabyDoge HODLers' average balance has increased by 2.32% during the last 24 hours. Currently, they hold 198.893 billion tokens in total, as per the WhaleStats data. Also, over the previous week, there has been an increase in BabyDoge social mentions, which has increased by 47%. At the same time, social engagement has climbed by 27%, as per LunarCrush data. On the other hand, BabyDoge's Total Value Locked (TVL) has been increasing. At the start of the second week, the BabyDoge TVL was roughly $15 million, at present, the TVL was upwards of $24.2 million. And BabyDoge's 24 hours of trading volume has risen by around 30% to $4 million. Dogecoin (DOGE) Performance in the Market Dogecoin (DOGE) is one of the most prominent meme coins in the crypto market and it's impossible to express Elon Musk's continued love for this first popular memecoin. At the time of writing, DOGE traded at $0.06629 with a price soaring by approximately 10% in the previous day. As well, Dogecoin's price increased evenly by 10% in the last 7 days with a trading volume of $688 million. Furthermore, Elon

Musk's interactions with Dogecoin may one of the reasons for raising its value. And recently, Elon Musk stated that he would contribute to it over time with some of his fortunes. Moreover, Musk's announcement of the Twitter deal would have to end by October 28. Recommended for you

- The net loss comes to $106 million at the conclusion of the third quarter. - Tesla's losses did not have a significant impact on the company's fundamental operations. Tesla, the electric vehicle (EV) maker, has reportedly invested $1.5 billion into Bitcoin since the beginning of 2021, as reported in the company's latest quarterly financial report filed with the United States Securities and Exchange Commission. The company has an unrealized loss of $170 million as a result of the decline in the fair value of its investments as of the present time. Still, the $64 million in profits made from Bitcoin investments at different times over the last two years helped to reduce the net loss to $106 million at the conclusion of the third quarter. Not Much Impact According to the document, Tesla's losses did not have a significant impact on the company's fundamental operations. The electric vehicle maker had a 169% increase in earnings from $3.3 billion during the first nine months of 2021. Tesla, though, claims to have just around $218 million worth of Bitcoin in its coffers at now. So, if their fair values go down, Tesla will have to take an impairment charge, but it won't adjust for price rises until they're sold. Gains on investments are not taxed until they are sold, and losses may be offset against earnings to lower tax bills. Elon Musk, CEO of Tesla, is well-known in the cryptocurrency community for his advocacy of digital assets, fondness for meme coins like Dogecoin, and $44 billion goal of acquiring social media behemoth Twitter. The billionaire tech star has promised to "eliminate the spam and scam bots from the platform," claiming that they make the product considerably worse, as the purchase continues. The existing cryptocurrency market is in flux. The crypto has been struggling as sources indicate that the US Federal Reserve will raise interest rates by 75 bps. The price of Cardano (ADA) has remained extremely volatile. And it's trading high and gradually turning green. Cardano is trading at $0.3454 at the time of writing, up nearly 2% in the last 24 hours. With a 24 trading volume of $499,924,182 and 34.31 billion ADA in circulation Furthermore, all other coins, Bitcoin are also leading the bullish market and are trading for $19,142.02, up by 0.36%. In recent days, the BTC has been having a hard time getting to 21K. Ethereum is trading at $1,298.20. Nearly up 0.68%. XRP is currently trading at $0.4577, up 2.28%. Additionally, Dogecoin is currently trading at $0.05924, up 0.63%. Likewise, Shiba Inu traded for $0.000009976 and as much as 1.03%. and moving into a bullish mode. One of the biggest winners in the cryptocurrency market over the past day is Avalanche. It is now trading at $15.62 after rising by more than 3% today. Instance for Cardano Driving Today The crypto price is being driven by the macroeconomic perspective. The Cardano price today remains highly unstable as the US Federal Reserve becomes more dovish. Inflation continues to rise, and the Fed is becoming more restrictive. The CME FedWatch tool currently indicates a 95% chance of another 75 basis point hike. However, as the global economy weakens, Fed officials are becoming more careful about reacting badly. Fed officials are expected to discuss a pause in rate hikes, and potentially a hinge. The Fed is also worried about the likelihood of a recession. The market is also being impacted by the UK's political and economic crisis, as well as China's worsening economy. The Federal Open Market Committee will meet on November 2nd. After the meeting, the Fed will announce its decision. Recommended For You

- Elon responded the recession may last up to 2024 spring. - Musk states "Still very unlikely, but this is the closest we've been since Cuba in '62". Every first-world country and top business firm is still recovering from the coronavirus pandemic, to worsen their situation the global recession is also joining the pack. The Q3 Gross Domestic Product data published by the US declared the official recession in the country. Now the discussion is more on the fact of how long or how bad the recession can be. Some sector of the global population is also expecting the next world war. The cross-country battle between Russia and Ukraine is seen as a start for it. A recent tweet by the Dogecoin CEO, Shiba Inu Nakamoto, highlighted the things the citizens of the world should worry about. The ambassador of the memecoin and the Tesla CEO, Elon Musk replied to it stating a year without disastrous calamity will bring little peace to the world. oh wow coronavirus numbers are actually pretty low " Shiba Inu Nakamoto (@BilbyM2k) October 21, 2022 i guess all we have to worry about now is the impending global recession and nuclear apocalypse Elon Musk's Prediction In the same above threat, Musk also conversed with people who raised questions. One such question was "How long you think the recession will last". To this Elon responded it may last up to 2024 spring. Elon Musk states: "Just guessing, but probably until spring of '24". Another fan member of Elon enquired about Elon's confidence over the happening of world war 3. For this Musk said the current scenario is very much similar to the Cuban Missile Crisis in 1962. The Cuban Missile Crisis of 1962 was a 35-day standoff between the United States and the Soviet Union that turned into a global emergency. Recommended For You

- Twitter lawsuit is on hold to allow Elon Musk to finalize the deal by October 28. - Elon Musk agreed to buy Twitter at the initial offer price of $54.20 per share. Delaware Chancery Judge halted Twitter Incâ€™s lawsuit against Elon Musk on Thursday, allowing the billionaire time to complete his $44 billion acquisition of the social media platform. The parties have until 5 p.m. on October 28 to finalize the takeover of Twitter. Tesla CEO, Musk, attempted for three months to walk out of his agreement to buy Twitter, but the social media hasnâ€™t dropped its legal action against the billionaire. Following that, Muskâ€™s attorneys requested a postponement of the trial, which was scheduled to begin on October 17. According to an order, Judge Kathleen St. J. McCormick stated that if the deal wasnâ€™t finalized by then, she will set trial dates in November. Elon Musk Vs Twitter In April, the CEO of electric vehicle manufacturer Tesla, Elon Musk, offered to purchase the social media platform Twitter for $43 billion. After paying $2.64 billion for 9.1% of the companyâ€™s stock, which made him the companyâ€™s largest stakeholder, Twitterâ€™s board of directors accepted Muskâ€™s acquisition offer for $44 billion. But, end of April, Musk holds the deal, claiming that around 90% of comments are from fake accounts. In July, Musk declared his walk away to end the deal, stating that Twitter had broken the terms by refusing to take action against fake user accounts. Then Twitter filed a lawsuit against Musk in the Delaware Court of Chancery. Furthermore, a recent report stated that Musk is seriously considering buying Twitter at the opening offer price of $54.20 per share. On that day the value of Twitter shares rose by 12.67%. The news was equally exciting for the DOGE community. Many Twitter users expressed an interest in DOGE which they expected to replace the Twitter currency with Dogecoin (DOGE). Recommended for you

The new SEC filing about the acquisition raises the prospect that Elon Musk's takeover of Twitter could soon come to an end. Musk's group has stated its intent to go through with the Twitter merger as outlined in the merger agreement. The newest update comes from Twitter, whereby they have stated their determination to finalize the purchase. According to a Twitter representative, the firm plans to finalize the deal for $54.20 per share. Earlier on Tuesday, it was reported that Elon Musk had made a bid to buy Twitter at the prevailing asking price. Musk allegedly made a bid to acquire Twitter at the first offer price of $54.20 per share. Musk proposed the idea in a letter to the social media platform. Twitter Stock and DOGE Price Surge In addition, the document revealed that the legal dispute between Twitter and Musk is now on hold. The agreement to acquire remains valid, however, only if the trial and all other actions are immediately stayed by the court. The SEC filing stated: "On October 3, 2022, the reporting person's advisors sent a letter to Twitter notifying Twitter that the reporting person intends to proceed to closing of the transaction contemplated by the merger agreement." On Tuesday, Twitter's share price surged as the news of Elon Musk's SEC filing spread. The announcement of Musk's plan to accept the initial offer price caused a sharp increase in the share price. The Twitter stock soared 21.58% on the day the SEC filing was announced. Dogecoin (DOGE) supporters were overjoyed when they heard that Musk was keen on finalizing a deal to acquire Twitter and the token price surged by 8%. Recommended For You:

- Musk asserted that current humanoid robots are missing a brain. - According to Musk, Tesla should achieve full self-driving this year. Elon Musk, the CEO of Tesla, demonstrated a prototype of its humanoid robot Optimus on Friday and forecast that the electric vehicle manufacturer would be able to produce millions of them and sell them for about $20,000. Musk acknowledged that Optimus still needs a lot of work to be improved upon and validated at Tesla's AI Day event, which was held at the company's Palo Alto headquarters. On Friday, Tesla displayed a video of a prototype model performing simple duties at a production station at the company's California plant, including watering plants, moving boxes, and lifting metal bars. Tesla said that the model was developed in February. Existing Humanoid Robots Are Brainless He claimed that current humanoid robots are missing a brain and the capacity to come up with solutions on their own. He asserted that Tesla would strive to build millions of Optimus, a highly capable robot, instead. He stated that he thought it would only cost around $20,000. Musk and Tesla officials agreed that a lot of work remained to be done to build a low-cost, mass-produced robot employing Tesla-designed technologies that may take the place of humans in the workplace. At the occasion, Tesla also spoke about its long-delayed self-driving technology. Auto self-driving software developers explained how they trained software to decide when to merge into traffic, among other tasks, and how they sped up the computer decision-making process. According to Musk, Tesla should accomplish fully self-driving this year and mass-produce a robotaxi without a steering wheel or pedal by 2024. Recommended For You :

- Telefonica also announced that it will be working with Qualcomm. - The telecom giant formed a partnership with Polygon earlier this year. Organizations all around the globe have begun supporting cryptocurrency payments at a steady pace as crypto acceptance grows. Telefonica, the largest telecom provider in Spain, reportedly now accepts Bitcoin and other cryptocurrencies for purchases on its tech marketplace. Following the integration of a payment option from Spain's biggest crypto exchange, Bit2Me, the firm reportedly enabled cryptocurrency transactions on Tu.com. This week, Telefonica also announced that it will be working with Qualcomm to develop augmented reality (AR) and metaverse-related products and services. The official statement noted: "This agreement opens the opportunity to deliver new experiences to customers merging the digital and analogue worlds, re-imagining commerce, entertainment, and communication in the Metaverse." Rise in Crypto Adoption in Spain The Spanish telecommunications giant is likewise NFT-compliant. It formed a partnership with Polygon earlier this year to provide Web3 solutions and make it simpler for businesses to issue NFTs. Recently, a number of well-known companies have expanded their payment methods in an effort to adapt to changing times and meet the needs of their clients. Gucci, for example, said in May that some of its shops will begin taking cryptocurrencies such as Shiba Inu, Dogecoin, Bitcoin, and Ethereum. Balenciaga began taking Bitcoin and Ethereum at certain stores around the same time. In June, Chipotle, a chain of Mexican fast food restaurants, announced that it will begin accepting cryptocurrency payments. Specifically, it just included a Post Merge similar approach to Ethereum's. Given that the Ethereum network would use 99.95% less energy after the Merge, the well-known fast food company announced a massive discount on its steak bowl in honor of the event. - The beta version will allow the first 10,000 clients on the waiting list. - The iOS-only app will purportedly have "no network fees" for crypto trading. In an official announcement, Robinhood said that the beta version of its Web3 wallet was now available, allowing the first 10,000 clients on the waiting list to take part in the wallet's testing. The iOS-only app will purportedly have "no network fees" for cryptocurrency trading, and it will also let users earn yield by linking to other decentralized apps (dApps). Beta users will be unable to engage in NFT trading or marketplace operations until the wallet's final release. Polygon Over Other Blockchains When asked why they chose Polygon as their only blockchain partner, Robinhood cited the network's "scalability, speed, low network fees, and robust developer ecosystem." The company said that it will eventually become a multichain wallet that supports a vast variety of blockchains. In January of this year, during the peak of the crypto bull market euphoria, Robinhood released the beta version of its cryptocurrency wallet. Withdrawal limits of $2,999 are placed on the first 1,000 customers, while prominent cryptocurrencies like Bitcoin, Ethereum, and Dogecoin are available for trading. The business announced the creation of its Web3 wallet in May. According to Robinhood's Chief Technology Officer Johann Kerbrat the wallet would enable users to trade over 20 cryptocurrencies without incurring any costs. Users will be able to connect to dapps and get yield on assets via the wallet. An anonymous Robinhood spokesperson stated at the time, "There's multiple solutions to deliver on that vision, and we're excited to show everyone how we're going to do it." This was in response to a question about whether Ethereum's move to proof-of-stake (PoS) consensus would affect the exchange's decision to support the cryptocurrency. Recommended For You:

- Buterin claims the high-stakes event went off without a hitch. - Buterin wants Dogecoin and Zcash move to PoS. Vitalik Buterin believes that now that the Ethereum merge is complete, other blockchains like Dogecoin and Zcash should also do the same. Over a video call with attendees at Friday's Mainnet conference, Vitalik projected that proof of stake will gain credibility over time. Buterin further added: "I hope that Zcash moves over. I am also very hopeful that Dogecoin is going to evolve over to proof of stake at some point soon." More Merge on the Cards Ethereum finally completed its anticipated merge event earlier this month, switching its primary network from the inefficient proof-of-work (PoW) model to the more eco-friendly proof-of-stake (PoS) model. Despite "some kind of bug" occurring in every test network merging, Buterin claims the high-stakes event went off without a hitch. Buterin spoke with Ryan Selkis, CEO of Messari, and Zooko Wilcox-O'Hearn, CEO of Electric Coin Company (Electric Coin Company leads Zcash development), at Mainnet. Wilcox-O'Hearn said: "I emailed me your plan for Ethereum, and I was like, 'holy shit. This is so exciting. And it'll never work. And then you and the Ethereum [developers] proved me wrong. It totally worked.'" Zooko, who is most known for his association with the Proof-of-Work privacy currency Zcash, shared this sentiment before, saying that the Ethereum integration will "never work." However, he has changed his mind recently. "You should be proud of yourselves for the rest of your life," Zooko stated to the Ethereum devs and Buterin. After being asked whether Zcash will carry out a merge-like event, Electric Coin Company's CEO indicated the cryptocurrency was waiting to see how Ethereum performed after the update. - Bitcoin and Ethereum witnessing a sudden plunge in the cryptocurrency market. - BTC is 1.84% down and ETH is 4.86% down in the last 24 hours. The global crypto market has started showing a bearish signal once again. After witnessing a significant price surge in the past few weeks, the major cryptocurrencies are now going through a massive crash in the market. The dominating cryptos in the market, Bitcoin and Ethereum have again plunged below, experiencing an unstable price momentum. Dominator's Struggles in Market The market dominator, Bitcoin (BTC) is currently going through a tremendous fall. A few days ago, BTC registered a price increase above $22,000. The coin suddenly dropped from $22k and is now struggling in the market with a price of around $18,000. Currently, Bitcoin is trading at around $18,675.95, with a one-day trading volume of $49,682,034,854. BTC has decreased nearly 1.84% in the last 24 hours, as per CMC. Like Bitcoin, the second leading coin in the crypto market, Ethereum (ETH) is also going through a struggling condition. For the past few days, ETH is continuously experiencing a massive collapse, even after the Ethereum blockchain's recent merge.

At the time of writing, ETH is trading around $1,265.80 with a one-day trading volume of $21,792,840,453. According to CMC, the coin is 4.86% down in the last 24 hours. The US Federal Reserve raised interest rates significantly again and issued a warning about the potential economic damage from future aggressive policy tightening, which put pressure on cryptocurrency prices. Top coin witnesses a sudden fall amid the Fed's recent decision regarding interest rate hikes. Moreover, along with Bitcoin and Ethereum, leading coins such as Binance Coin (BNB), Cardano (ADA), Solana (SOL), Dogecoin (DOGE), Polkadot (DOT), Polygon (MATIC), and Shiba Inu (SHIB) also registered a massive price drop in the past seven days. - Dogecoin became the second-largest cryptocurrency that uses the PoW consensus. - DOGE has overtaken DOT and reclaimed the tenth position in the ranking. - Dogecoin traded at $0.057177 with a trading volume of $316,233,477. In terms of market value, Dogecoin (DOGE) surpassed and overtaken Polkadot (DOT). According to data from CoinMarketCap, DOGE reclaimed the tenth spot in the ranking of cryptocurrencies. DOT and DOGE currently have market capitalizations of $7,071,095,530 and $7,582,265,920, respectively DOGE having a $511 million difference. When the Ethereum Merge went live on September 15, Dogecoin surpassed popular coins like Litecoin (LTC) and Ethereum Classic (ETC). Following that, Dogecoin becomes the second-largest cryptocurrency that uses the Proof-of-Work (PoW) consensus after Bitcoin. This position makes the DOGE near the top of the cryptocurrency market. Musk's Endless Love on DOGE The DOT price decline of more than 17% over the previous week was a remarkable drop even against the unfavorable sentiment on the crypto market, helping DOGE retake its position. In other words, it's more likely that Dogecoin has fuelled its growth as Polkadot has lost market share. At the time of writing, Dogecoin traded at $0.05648 with a trading volume of $316,233,477. DOGE is down 7.24% in the last 24 hours. On the other hand, Polkadot traded at $6.28 with a trading volume of $357,514,606. DOT is down 10.70% in the last 24 hours. Moreover, Elon Musk's love for Dogecoin made DOGE gain space in the market. In May 2021, Elon Musk announced that he had been working with Dogecoin developers since 2019 to increase the transaction efficiency of their network. Additionally, Musk's companies Tesla and SpaceX began taking DOGE as payment for their goods, which led to a quick but temporary price increase. Furthermore, even in the market meltdown, Musk declared that he would not sell his crypto holdings, including DOGE and Bitcoin. After Musk's statement, Tesla sold 75% of its Bitcoin holdings in the following months. Recommended for you

- Bitcoin recently attained a sudden price surge, reaching above $22k. - Major altcoins witnessed a price downfall, during the last 24 hours.
